$80,000 Plus a Fence

The purchase price, $80,000, has been decided in court, and there are no further obstacles to the state's acquiring for a state park the beach strip from Carmel River mouth to San Jose Creek, including the knoll with the cross on it. Since the land is soon to belong to the people, Chief Ranger of Point Lobos Ronald Wilson and Lobos League Representative Francis Whitaker though it a good idea Tuesday to make a check to see if the property was in need of protection. It is.

A visit to the knoll with its cross overlooking Carmel River mouth revealed that the people couldn't wait until the land was theirs before starting to destroy it.

The knoll was seldom visited until recently when the adjacent fields were developed for a subdivision and roads put in. It wasn't visited because the only way to get to it was on foot and who wants to walk except peculiar people like bird watchers, nature lovers and conservationists? But once the subdivision roads were built, people soon made a road for themselves to the knoll simply by driving their cars over the intervening land strip.

So the soft shell-mound soil has had its ground cover broken and there is serious wind erosion as a result. Some of the people have interpreted a state park to mean a garbage dump. Others have decided that if the land belongs to them, they might as well take some of it home with them, and have carried away top soil for their gardens, and on a very ambitious scale. At least one truck was seen hauling soil away.

A good stout fence to keep out motor traffic is needed, Ronald Wilson decided, but is not sure if state funds are available.

If the state can find $80,000 to acquire the land for the people, it should be able to dig up a few additional dollars for a fence to protect it from the people.

The San Francisco Regional News Service weekly sheet contains the following story:

"Monarch, said to be the only mounted California grizzly bear in existence, is now in the possession of Dr. Robert T. Orr, curator of mammals at the California Academy of Sciences in San Francisco.

"Extermination of the California grizzly occurred so swiftly, according to Dr. Orr, that few museums in the world have even a portion of a skeleton. The bear was given to Dr. Orr by the deYoung Museum which has had it in storage many years.

"Monarch became a public figure some 64 years ago as the result of a newspaper stunt. He was said to have been captured in the San Gabriel Mountains of Los Angeles County in 1889. With the journalistic fanfare of the day, Monarch was brought to San Francisco and installed in Woodward's Gardens where he lived for 22 years, until the infirmities of

No Fights, Lots Of Work At Wed. Council Meeting

City council at its meeting Wednesday night approved City Engineer Clayton Neill's drainage plan for Junipero Street between Fifth and Ocean Avenue and authorized Street Commissioner Francis Whitaker to try to persuade the property owners to help pay for it.

Total cost is estimated at $4000, and the idea is for the city to bear 60 percent, and the property owners to contribute $3.00 per front foot.

The police department was authorized to turn in one of its two robin egg blue patrol cars, now two years old, for a new one, chartreuse, maybe. Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, Police Commissioner John Chitwood and Superintendent of Streets William Askew are to act as purchasing committee.

By resolution, the council reduced the police department's active working hours to 44 per week instead of 48, if they can arrange it without reduction of service and without increasing the man-power on the force. In many other cities the police work week is now 40 hours. The Carmel patrolmen know it, and the turnover in the department has been considerable. Council also decided to see if the city could take our insurance to recompense the patrolmen from damage to personal property and uniforms while on duty. In a recent vigorous engagement with a drunk, one Carmel officer broke a $90 wrist watch, another had his uniform torn beyond repair. According to law, the city itself cannot compensate its policemen for such damage.

Bowing to Christmas, the council announced a half holiday for the city employees on the Saturdays following Christmas and New Year's, which makes a whole holiday since the city normally oper-

Thomas Perry Is Chosen President Of Business Assn.

Thomas Perry, Carmel City Attorney, was elected president of the Carmel Business Association at the board of directors meeting, preceding the quarterly dinner of the association at La Playa Hotel Wednesday night.

Perry, absent because a city council meeting was concurrently in progress at city hall, was not able to receive the gavel from Arne Halle, retiring president. Halle thanked his committee heads who had helped him in business association projects during the past year. Corum Jackson presented him with a gift from the membership in appreciation of his services to the organization. Secretary Helen Wilson was also on the association's Christmas list.

New directors are Ralph Castagna, Robert Spencer, Mark Thomas, Corum Jackson and Walter Nielsen. From this group Thomas was chosen vice president and Walter Nielsen, treasurer. Mark Raggett, one of the hold-over directors, was named secretary.

Dublin Players In Pygmalion At Sunset, January 7

The Dublin Players, made up of the finest actors of Ireland's famous Abbey and Gate Theatres, will include a performance of George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion in Carmel at Sunset Auditorium, Thursday, January 7, 1954, in their current tour of the United States. This company springs from the renaissance in dramatic acting and writing which has made the name of the Irish Theatre known throughout the world.

Described by Eddie Dowling as "The foremost acting organization of our time", the Dublin Players, now on a coast to coast tour of American cities, have presented great Irish and English classics to Graves Named Western Head Of Natl. Parks Assn.

With the appointment this week of C. Edward Graves as Western Representative of one of the nation's leading conservation groups, the National Parks Association, Carmel is now the headquarters of a great territory extending from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast.

The opening of the association's first Western office and the appointment of Graves as its chief was announced Wednesday by Sigurd F. Olson of Ely, Minnesota, president of the National Parks Association, at a meeting of the executive committee in Washington, D.C. The move makes the National Parks Association the fourth of the country's "big five" conservation organizations to have headquarters west of the Rockies.

Widely known as a lecturer, writer, mountaineer and scenic photographer, Graves, with his wife, moved permanently to Carmel in 1945 from Arcata, where for twenty years he was librarian of the Humboldt State Teachers College. His interest in nature and conservation, photography and books, virtually dates back to his boyhood on a Connecticut farm. He studied at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut, spent a year in Europe studying foreign languages, then entered the New York State Library School. After teaching and librarian positions in Illinois and Minnesota, he joined the staff of Humboldt State in 1924.

Since his retirement, which was nominal at best, he has been actively engaged in his twin avocations of photography and conservation. His series of 2 x 2 color slides distributed under name of Colorful America have gained him national recognition; the originals of this series were preserved in the Library of Congress Photographic Archive. Here in Carmel the Adult School has sponsored several showings of his slide lec-

All Invited To Sunset's Annual Xmas Pageant

Sunset again this year invites the community to its annual Christmas pageant at Sunset Auditorium, Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock. The Gothic architectural style of the auditorium has suggested the theme for the Christmas celebration. The story will be told by a verse choir of seventh and eighth grade boys. The chanting of the verse choir will try to represent some of the mystery and simplicity of the early Christian church. Other than the parts of the Bible telling the story of the nativity, there are passages taken from pre-Shakespearian liturgical dramas. The verse choir is led by the guiding angel of last year, Brian Casiday.

The music this year is both traditional and very old carols, dating from the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries. Arthur Holman has arranged the carols to try to express tone qualities of the Gregorian Chant. The choir consists of:

Brenda Buerger, Kathleen Aldrich, Patty Elston, Judy Sargant, Suzann Pilot, Diane Paddleford, Marilyn Reid, Lynda King, Jean Elston, Sue Mitchell, Connie Chedester, Hilary Teague, Susan Mosolf, Irene Fernandez, Karen Engle, Sharon Zarp, Moni Gatewood, Jan-

Carmel Portraits . . .

By DAISY BOSTICK

THE TIME HAS COME for me to write of Kippy Stuart. According to the best of my recollection I have never seen her but once and that was nigh onto twenty years ago. So this is written without any meeting, interview or questioning on my part. I don't know where she was born or how old she is and I don't care. Kippy is ageless and, like Peter Pan, she has never grown up. Ours is a warm friendship, although I know her only through her column and over the telephone. And I gather that she is living a full life with her friends, her gardens and her cats.

Her personality is revealed by her rich husky voice, her warmth and enthusiasm, her intense awareness of life and her garden columns in the Pine Cone. When I say "hello" into the telephone, from the other end of the line comes: "Hello, Daisy. This is Kippy. How are you and Agamemmon?" Then I tell her of Aggie, the Robson cat, who is my special pal and companion. I can't help but relate some new story of Aggie, and Kippy, responds with tales of the prowess of her beloved cat, Joe Louis. At least that used to be the subject of her conversation but some time ago she phoned to tell me that Joe the mighty hunter had disappeared and had been gone so long that she was declaring him legally dead. There were tears in her voice — and I detected a great loneliness. I know how I'd feel if Aggie were unable to pay me his daily visit.

Not long after that Kippy phoned again. Her spirits were soaring up in the blue yonder for she had a new cat—or rather a kitten. And then she told me a fantastic story. As I remember it, she had been on a trip down south, left her car for a few minutes and came back to find this kitten sitting cozily in the front seat of the car. So Kippy and Kitty came home to Carmel. That's what the lady said. I said: "Are you quite

The Chester Hares Almost Ready For The Grand Tour

Beginning to emerge from a welter of luggage and the accumulated tizzy of several months' preparation, Dr. and Mrs. Chester Hare have just six days in which to catch their collective breath and face a host of well-wishers and bon voyage parties before setting off on their long-anticipated round-the-world tour.

All-out concentration on the forthcoming trip commenced last month, with Dr. Hare's official retirement from his optometric practice after 27 years in Monterey. He and his wife, Hildreth, have promised themselves the grand tour for a long time, and next Thursday, come hell or high taxes, they're off.

Making the trip with them are their sons Leland and Donn and daughter, Gay Masten. The boys, aged nine and seven respectively, have been attending the Carmel Mission school; Gay, 18, graduated from Dominican School in San Rafael last June and has been here helping with preparations for the trip since then.

The family leaves Thursday for San Francisco, and on Saturday they board the President Cleveland for Hawaii, the Pacific Islands and points east. They'll spend Christmas somewhere at sea. Arriving in Japan, the family will be joined by Dr. Hare's son, Jimmy, who's serving with the Army in Korea. Jimmy will accompany them on an 11-day tour of the island, then see them off on the Dutch boat which will take them to Hongkong, Manila and Singapore.

From Singapore, the family will board a slow boat for a 28-day side trip to Bali and through the archipelago. Back from this excursion, they'll take a plane for Bangkok, Rangoon and Calcutta, and from there commence an extensive six-weeks' tour of India. After that, they'll head for Colombo, Ceylon, and a ten days' rest, which is liable to be rather on the hectic side since their visit coincides with that of Queen Elizabeth. They will be in Colombo for Ceylon's own coronation of the Queen.

In June the family arrives in Marseilles, where they will take delivery on a new British station wagon and head for Switzerland to put the boys in school for the summer. Dr. Hare, Hildreth and Gay will backtrack to Cherbourg to meet the Queen Mary bringing another family member, Warren Masten. He'll leave for France early next summer, as soon as school lets out (he's attending Kiskiminetas prep in Pennsylvania). The entourage will spend the summer motoring around Europe; come fall, Warren will return stateside, and Gay plans to enter college somewhere on the continent. The Hares, too, are somewhat uncertain as to plans from that point on: they may pick up Lee and Donn and head for the French or Spanish Riviera, or they may leave them in school in Switzerland. "If we get bored, unhappy or tired, we'll come home," says Hildreth matter-of-factly; "if not, we'll probably be gone about two years."

Hildreth, being a seasoned globetrotter, will be the family's Baedeker for the trip. It's Dr. Hare's first real trip abroad, though he's an equally enthusiastic traveller. Hildreth remembers being toted from one continent to another since she was handle-high to an overnight bag. Her peripatetic parents had her in school all over Europe, and she figures she's circled the globe approximately two times. This time around, she's most keenly anticipating the trip to Bali and the tour of India, which she found completely fascinating on an earlier visit.

Only one member of the family is getting left on the beach for the duration of the trip: Hildreth's son Ric Masten and his wife Billie, who have a new house and a new baby to look out for. However, Ric, who's being a brick about the whole thing, had his fling on the continent not too long ago; and after all, what would Carmel be without at least one member of the clan around?

Hartnell Choir In Christmas Program At All Saints' Wed.

The 55-voice choir of Hartnell College will present a special Christmas concert Wednesday evening at 8:00 o'clock in All Saints' Episcopal Church. This will be the first in a series of Christmas concerts to be presented around Monterey County by the group, which is under the direction of Vahe Aslanian.

The program will consist of A Ceremony of Carols by the contemporary British composer, Benjamin Britten; three chorales from the Christmas Oratorio by J. S. Bach; and the chorale Rejoice, Beloved Christnans by Dietrich Buxtehude.

Appearing with the choir for the occasion will be Mrs. Elizabeth Seccombe, harpist, who will be featured in the Britten work, and William T. Stone, who will play the organ accompaniments. Soprano soloists with the choir will be Valerie Johnston, Sylvia Lewis and Marilyn McLaren.

CHORUS PLANS CHRISTMAS CONCERT

The Peninsula Male Chorus and Women's Chorus, both under the direction of John Farr, will present their annual Christmas Sing next Sunday evening, December 20, at 5:30 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium.

Robert E. Peck

Robert Earle Peck, retired Latin scholar and educator, and a resident of Carmel for the past nine years, died Tuesday at a local hospital after a long period of declining health. He was 77.

Born July 15, 1876, in Winsted, Connecticut, Mr. Peck was for 42 years head Latin Master at St. Paul's School in Concord, New Hampshire. He and his wife, Ruby Norton Peck, retired to Carmel in 1944, making their home at Forest Road and Pine Ridge Way. He leaves only his wife.

Private services were held Wednesday at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium, with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements. Memorial services and inurnment will take place at the chapel of St. Paul's School in Concord.

One More Survey Doesn't Matter Now To Carmelo

The Monterey County Committee on School District Organization failed to muster a quorum at the meeting December 3 at Carmelo School on Carmelo School district's petition to secede from Monterey District and join Carmel. So action was again postponed on an issue that has been postponed, sidetracked and attenuated to such an extent that the weary petitioners have adopted as their slogan, "If not in our time, perhaps for our grandchildren's children."

But the lack of quorum didn't deter Floyd Taylor, State Bureau of School District Information, from presenting the results of his latest survey, the effect of the proposed withdrawal on the finances of Monterey district. Citizens at the meeting found the figures subject to various interpretations, but after getting out their pencils and papers and working them over for themselves decided that they boiled down to about a cent increase per hundred on the Monterey taxpayer's annual bill. Loren Wilder and several other Carmelo district citizens thought that the financial loss to Monterey was not sufficient to justify depriving Carmelo district children of attending Carmel schools.

Gordon Campbell dispelled the argument that has been hanging over the deliberations for months, that Carmelo's withdrawal would establish a precedent and all the districts south of Carmel would bolt from Monterey. Campbell, referring to the school code, said that the law provided for any school to petition any time for withdrawal from a district, and precedent had nothing to do with it.

Loren Smith, Monterey member of the Redistricting Committee, who was attending his last meeting before the expiration of his term, said that his final recommendation was that the Carmelo students should be allowed to attend Carmel schools because they are nearer at hand. He added that Taylor's predictions that there would be 3,600 students in Monterey High School in 1961, figured on the basis of last year's first grade enrollment, was based on an assumption of continuance of last year's industrial activity in Monterey, activity which has already tapered off and apparently will continue to do so. When there is no work, parents move away, Smith pointed out. He did not think it would be a grevious shock to Monterey's school finances if Carmelo withdrew.

Next meeting is set for January 27 and as usual there is to be another survey in the interim, this time the financial effect of the transfer of Carmelo on Carmel and Monterey's elementary school system. Last survey was confined to the high schools.

This survey will not seriously impair Carmelo's interests since the summer time survey-delays made it impossible for Carmelo to get its case before the State Board's December meeting, and now Carmelo cannot possibly enter the Carmel district before July 1, 1955.

old age caught up with him and he had to be killed in 1911.

The skin was mounted and the body buried but later exhumed so that the rare skeleton specimen could be preserved.

According to Dr. Orr the huge bears roamed California in great numbers at the time of the Gold Rush. Because of their depredations, settlers of the '50s and '60s waged relentless war on the grizzly with guns and poison, and by the end of the '70s they were on the way of extinction."

We picture our grandchildren reading a similar dispatch in the not too distant future with California Mountain Lion substituted throughout for grizzly, concluding with . . . "According to Dr. Soandso, as late as the 1950's tawny mountain lions could be seen occasionally by sportsmen and hikers who were hardy enough to climb into the remote areas in the Coast Ranges, but even these few survivors were shortly exterminated through the activities of state hunters and individuals encouraged by state and county bounty systems".

Responsibility For Survival Of Ross Goose Depends On Californians

ROSS'S GOOSE

In winter in the valleys of central California one may still see good-sized flocks of small, snow-white geese. The Ross's Goose is about one-half the weight of the Lesser Snow Goose, which in turn is smaller than the Snow Goose. Ross's Geese are often found in flocks of their larger relatives.

The Ross's Goose is snow-white except for black primary wing feathers, the four outermost of which are margined. The bill is red or pale purple with a black edge and the upper bill is warty or wrinkled near the base, a character not to be found in the Snow Goose. This warty bill gives the bird such common names as little wavy, horned wavy, and scabby-nosed wavy. In flight, the Ross's Goose is usually more quiet than is the Snow Goose. The Ross's Goose is probably the smallest of our geese, being about the size of a mallard.

Ross's Goose is named after B. R. Ross who in 1861 sent specimens to John Cassin who recognized it as a new species. Ross was Chief Factor of the Hudson's Bay Company and had been a corstitution. He sent the specimens from Great Slave Lake.

It was not until 1935 that serious efforts were made to discover the nesting ground of this goose and not until the last day of June 1940 when the actual breeding ground was discovered. The first breeding birds were discovered on a lake which is a tributary of the Perry River about 50 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

The nest of the Ross's Goose is built on the ground and has an over-all diameter of about 1 foot. The eggs are laid in a cavity about 2½ inches deep and five inches across completely surrounded with a downy rim. The normal number of eggs is four but the number may vary from two to six. The eggs are approximately 2¾ inches long and nearly two inches thick.

Probably the members of the species all nest in a relatively small area but the individual nests are usually at least three to thirty feet away from the nest of any other Ross's Goose. The eggs are creamy white.

The Ross's Goose was one of the last of the North American birds to have kept its breeding ground a secret.

In the days of market shooting in California great numbers of these choice-fleshed geese were shot by market-hunters. The size of the flocks used to be enormous, some including as many as several thousand birds. There is little doubt but that the numbers have been drastically reduced and it is hoped that measures may be adopted designed to save the species and to restore it to a safe survival size.

Since the winter range is practically confined to California, much of the responsibility for survival depends on Californians. The known breeding range is so small and so inaccessible that it is probable that the future of the species depends almost wholly on the reception the bird gets in its winter range. While the species is protected by law, there are probably less than 5,000 left at the present time.

enthusiastic audiences wherever they have appeared. The company gained such unusual responses to their television appearances in New York over CBS-TV that they were asked to appear several times.

Critics across the country have praised the excellence of the entire group, each member of which is capable of outstanding performance. "The performance of the Dublin Players reflected the genuineness of the perfection of their wonderful theatrical tradition . . . We, unfortunately, do seldom see this rare quality in the United States", wrote Charles Bickley of Monticello College in Illinois after a recent performance.

Shaw's Pygmalion has proved one of the most successful productions of the group, its delicious comedy appealing to audiences from Houston to Northampton, Massachusetts. The production in Carmel will be presented under the Denny-Watrous Management which has brought outstanding entertainment to Carmel and San Jose for a decade or more.

KOREA FOR CHRISTMAS

Pvt. Henry Overin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Overin Sr. of Carmel, arrived last month in Korea for a tour of duty with the 45th Infantry Division—an outfit which holds the distinction of being the first National Guard division to see combat since World War II.

Henry, a 1952 graduate of Carmel High, entered the Army last March and went through his basic training at Fort Ord.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

Spraying time is definitely here. All sorts of vermins are walking around your bailiwick and you better get busy. Usually I start a general clean-up in gardens in January, but if you happened to see what I saw yesterday, you would hurry up with the spray gun. I saw a pine tree literally smothered beneath black scale, of which there is nothing more destructive in the garden.

Ceanothus and manzanita are having a bad time, and this is strange to most people for they think of our native flora as more or less impervious to pests. Don't you believe it, and any home-owner lucky enough to have a stand of either manzanita or ceanothus had better take a look-see.

Some scale is hard to identify, adhering to the bark; others are easily identified. The cottony cushion scale is the one that makes me shudder. This fellow you can see, but scraping the insects off does no good. The mature scale has already done his damage by laying eggs into the bark of citrus and other shrubs. The idea is to get rid of the larva.

Then there is the juniper scale, the pine leaf scale. This is the fellow infesting this particular pine tree I am about to pounce upon. You can take your pick of scale from the black scale, oyster-shell scale right on down to the San José scale. I wonder how that nice town likes to have this insidious insect named after it? The reason for borrowing San Jose as identifying this particular scale is that in 1880 the first ones were found near that city. The San Jose scale was introduced from China; one or two at first, now multiplied into legions. Then there is the scurfy (not scurvy) scale and the terrapin scale. These pests attack all fruit trees, ornamentals, firs and pines.

If you have the courage to lift one of these tiny monsters you may find beneath the body reddish-purple eggs, hardly discernible to the naked eye. There the baby scale wait through the winter to make a field day in spring and summer.

These insects can be divided into two groups; the armored or hard shell and the tortoise or soft shell. Some scale lay eggs, others bear young alive. Now that I have scared you to death I hope you'll rush into your garden to examine your own wealth of growing things.

I don't hold with this flit gun stuff; if your garden means anything to you, at least you owe it the care of the expert and you'll be surprised how little it costs to have a general clean-up by a professional. I always call for the professional at least twice a year to clean my entire garden from border to border, and my garden thanks me.

After receiving the Commendation Ribbon for meritorious service, M/Sgt. Franklin G. Garrison (right), whose wife, Olivia, lives in Carmel, is congratulated by Lt. Col. Robert G. Platt, assistant adjutant general, Eighth Army, in Korea. Garrison was cited for his work as the chief clerk at Eighth Army headquarters. He entered the Army in 1927 and wears the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster in addition to the Commendation Ribbon.

Mission Fields Granted Annexation To Sanitary District

Wright Fisher, representing Mission Fields Incorporated, appeared before the Carmel Sanitary District Board at its meeting Monday evening to petition for annexation of the company's property to the Sanitary District.

Petition was granted on the following terms. The company will pay $5160 contribution to the treatment works to equalize the investment of property owners already in the district, and will lay its own sewers which will be connected with the main sewer leading from Hatton Fields to the plant on the Carmel River.

Mission Fields is located in the artichoke field between Rio Road and Highway No. 1. It is to be subdivided for residences in the early spring.

Gigi Bows Tonight At Wharf Theatre

Gigi, the gay French comedy adapted by Anita Loos from a novel by Colette, opens its holiday run this evening at the Wharf Theatre in Monterey. Set in Paris, 1900, the story concerns the education of a willful young girl into the arts of coquetry by her mundane and demimondaine family.

In the title role, created on Broadway by Audrey Hepburn, is Jeanne Dam, who has demonstrated her charm and versatility in several Wharf Theatre roles, including the lead in the musical Brigadoon which ended its holdover run last week.

The male lead will be played by Wharf newcomer Lew Perkins, who came here recently from the Hillbarn Theatre in San Mateo. The supporting cast includes such Wharf favorites as Jean Levinson, Barbara McMahon, Peggy Cease, Audrey Meader and Nick LeFeuvre.

Bergen . . .

By ASTRID SISSON

PART III

Among public buildings of interest is the City Hall built in 1558. Bergenhus Fort with the old Festival Hall of King Haakon Haakonsson, built in the thirteenth century. Here the King of Spain married the Norwegian Princess Christina. The Rosenkranz Tower built in 1562-67 to form a large plaza, one side of which was Haakon's Hallen, the other side Bergenhus Fort, the fourth side being open to the sea. All of these were severely damaged during the war, but will be restored. The weakened walls will be reinforced, and enough bits of this and that are left, as for example the beautiful wrought iron work covering window and gun openings, to give a skilled workman enough of a pattern to recreate it as it was originally. The interiors are completely destroyed.

Bergen has many beautiful, old churches. Mariakirken is the oldest building in Bergen, built in the first half of the twelfth century. The Domekirke (the cathedral) to which my family now and always belonged, is severely beautiful, and many other churches are in and near the city. Some of them were damaged during the war; all but Nykirken, built in 1618, have been restored, and that will be when funds are available. Fana, 800-year-old church near Bergen, has just been restored. Near that are the ruins of Lyseklester built in 1146, as a daughter-foundation for Fountains Abbey, York, England.

Fantoft Stavekirke is even older. Its roof has shingles shaped like fish scales, and many dragon heads and tails decorate the roof, carved, as were the decorations on the old Viking ships. This old church has a separate room for lepers, the separating wall ending at eye-level, giving the sick a chance to see the clergyman.

This is as good a place as any to mention Fisketorget which is one of the greatest tourist attractions in Bergen. To it the fishermen bring their live catch, and transfer the fish into large tanks filled with sea water. The housewife goes from tank to tank until she finds what she wants. Then the fisherman dips the fish out. Should it be less plump than it appeared in the water, or otherwise not up to expectations, it is dropped back and the search continues. The bargaining back and forth can grow hilariously funny if housewife and fisherman both have the sense of humor people in and around Bergen usually have, especially if an audience is present. Such repartee has been celebrated in plays and ditties. Fisketorget was Stokowski's favorite haunt during his several weeks stay in Bergen last summer, and it was from this place Mary Margaret McBride broadcast to America, featuring an English-speaking cod which answered Miss McBride's questions in faltering English, strongly flavored with the accent of a Bergen fisherman.

Bergen is famous for its many statutes. Near Byparken on Festplass stands one of Christian Michelsen, Norway's Prime Minister in 1905 when Norway separated from Sweden.

In Byparken is a statue of Edward Grieg, the composer. (The home in which he was born at 152 Strandgaten was lost in the war.)

Christie, president of the first Norwegian Storting after Norway became united with Sweden, in 1814, stands in front of Bergen University.

Ole Bull, 1810-1880, the great violinist, is honored with a statue on Ole Bulls Plass. His birthplace, also on Strandgaten, was destroyed in the fire.

A statue of Bjornstjerne Bjornson, 1832-1910, great dramatist and Ibsen's contemporary, and beloved by the Norwegians, stands outside the National Scene. He received the Nobel Prize in 1903.

Ludvig Holberg, 1684-1754, the Nordic Moliere, was born and raised in Bergen, educated in Holland, Oxford and Paris, returned to Bergen and tutored there privately until he was offered a professorship at the University of Copenhagen, where most of his plays were written and produced. They are still very popular in Europe. His statue stands on Fisketorget, where, it is said, he discovered many of the characters used in his comedies.

A stipendium from Bergen made it possible for Professor J. C. Dahl, 1788-1857, to study art abroad. I had to look him up in an American encyclopedia, which named him one of the pioneers of modern landscape painting. His statue is in Museum of Arts and Crafts.

Snorre Sturlason's monument is at Bryggen. He was an Icelandic historian and statesman of Norwegian ancestry, and author of Heimskringla and Prose Edda. He lived in Bergen from 1218, at first a favorite of King Haakon, who had him put to death when he became too aggressive. His Sagas show great literary ability, and have been translated into many languages.

Amalie Skram, author, has a statue at Klosterhaugen.

A monument of navigation honors the sailors from Bergen lost in the war. It stands on Torvalmending.

There is a bust of Dr. Armauer-Hansen in the Museum Park, and scattered around town are busts of many others, not known outside Norway.

Sculptures in Nygaards Park include Emanuel Vigeland's The Virgin and the Unicorn, Sofus Madsen's The Dawn and The Nygaars Boy.

In the Theater Park: Gustav Vigeland's Mother and Child, Ingebrigt Vik's Youth, and Rodin's Bronze Age.

At Lille Lungaards Lake: Sofus Madsen's Children's Fountain.

For those who like hiking there are many paths and roads to choose from. A favorite used to be Floien, the summit of one of the mountains surrounding Bergen. It used to take a whole long afternoon to get up there and stop at the restaurant and renew one's strength with a cup of coffee and cake, while admiring the wonderful view of city and fjord. I thought the view best on a dark but clear, star-sprinkled night, then all the stars in heaven seemed to have dropped into the fjord, creating a sight of wondrous beauty. To be up there on a Sunday morning, with the soft, sweet music of the city's many church bells reaching one through the morning silence, could also be an unforgettable experience.

From Floien are paths leading through the hilly country beyond the summit, which can be explored on foot as well as on skis, according to the season. Reaching Floien now is an easy task. The funicular takes one to the top in ten minutes.

This has then been a small introduction to the old and new Bergen. The new city is beautiful. The wide streets down town have flowerbeds everywhere, and benches nearby on which to sit and enjoy them. As well as being pleasing to the eyes, it is extremely clean. Even the miles of well-built brygger (quays) have gay little parks where people sit and watch the busy life on the fjord. Coming from a party one lovely warm summer night about one o'clock, when the light was slightly dimmed, almost all benches along the Brygge were occupied, mostly by older people, and up town there seemed to be as many people on the streets as there were during the day. One notices too that the waterfront has none of the clutter one usually associates with a brygge.

As for old Bergen, I have missed much I liked. The narrow crooked streets, and the little funny stores, sometimes with steps in front, and a bell tinkling when the door was opened. I have missed the many characters formerly on the streets. Now the fishermen appear to be the only characters left, and their customers. I have also missed the milkmen, who rattled through the

SKY TRAILS

Colossal impudence of man!
To write across the morning sky
These vast parabolas of pride—
As if to say there is no plan
Of God's we dare not tear away,
Nor any space we dare not stride.

Upon that clear and lonely blue
Where all the world's confusions cease,
Proud-winged like Icarus you fly.
You conquer distance, it is true,
But you have spoiled the fields of peace.
How dare you scribble on the sky!

—VALERIE GOUGH.

WINTER WEALTH

The trees, once robed, are bare and ragged now;
And each denuded bough
Is flooded with a lonely light.
Gone is the bright
Warm richness of October.
The brooding heart is sober,
Thinking of ten thousand flowers laid low,
Ready for the triumph of the snow.
But on my terrace, myrtle leaves are seen,
Like the wall-ivy, rich and green;
The dazzling wonder of my holly-tree
Brings summer back to me;
And proud below the little garden hill
The barberry wears her glowing rubies still.

—CHARLES BALLARD.

REVERSIBLE MIRRORS

Honorarium to the lowly
May be insult to the proud;
Quincunx-walls unto the fly
Prove museum to the crowd;

A dragoman to Persia?
A bootblack to the west;
A holocaust to mortals,
Transition to the Blest!

Watanabe-Miyamoto Wedding

Over 300 guests were present last Sunday afternoon for the solemn and beautiful wedding ceremony which united Miss Alice Reiko Watanabe of Monterey and Gordon N. Miyamoto of Carmel Valley. The 3:00 o'clock nuptial service, conducted by the Rev. B. Suzimura of Salinas, was held in the Japanese-American Citizens' League Hall in Monterey, and was followed by a gala reception and dance in the ballroom of the San Carlos Hotel.

Both the bride and groom were raised and schooled on the Peninsula, Alice in Monterey and Gordy in Carmel, where he attended Sunset and Carmel High. Both were graduated from Monterey Peninsula College. The new Mrs. Miyamoto is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tajuro Watanabe, while Gordy is one of the five sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kumahiko Miyamoto of the Valley.

Miss Watanabe was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Jun, was maid of honor, with Miss Alice Satow of Monterey the bridesmaid; little Diane Miyamoto, Gordon's niece and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoshito Miyamoto, was the flower girl. The bride wore a full-skirted gown of white net over satin, its white velvet bodice detailed with a yoke of beaded net. A small coronet held her fingertip veil, and she carried an all-white bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley. The bridal attendants wore ankle-length frocks of American beauty taffeta and carried nosegays of baby American beauty roses and white carnations.

Standing up with the groom as best man was his eldest brother, Archie Miyamoto of Pacific Grove. Ushers were Kenny Jones and Tom Hefling of Carmel and George Kodama of Monterey. Also in the wedding party were Gordon's three other brothers, Ky, Maya and Hoshito.

When they return from their honeymoon, Gordon and his wife will move into the new home they are building in Carmel Valley, where Gordon is partner in a berry farm with his brother Maya.

Birthday for Forrest

Forrest Cornwall celebrated his ninth birthday Saturday afternoon with a luncheon and TV party for a group of his young friends. The luncheon, prepared by Forrest's mother Mrs. L. Cornwall and featuring ice cream, cake and all the usual birthday fixings, was a great success, but the TV, thanks to a temporarily disconnected cable, failed to function. By way of recompense, the host treated his guests to a movie matinee instead.

Helping Forrest celebrate were Judy Hensel, Karen Reid, Susan Shirley, Paulette Solt, Norman Cotton, Arthur Catron, Lee Oleson and Walter Gross. Also present was Dilly, Forrest's pet pooch, who participated enthusiastically in the games, got a bang out of the balloons, and happily mopped up on what was left of the refreshments.

Santa Catalina Winter Ball

December 19 is the date set for the annual Christmas Ball of the Santa Catalina School for Girls. The formal ball, high point of the school's winter season, will be held at the Beach Club, with dancing slated from 8:30 o'clock on and a buffet supper at 11:30 o'clock. About sixty Santa Catalina students and their escorts plan to attend.

Chaperons will be Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Nix of Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. John Gardiner of Pebble Beach, Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ryan an and Mr. and Mrs. F. Hilton Smith of Salinas, Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis of Hollister and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nevin of Napa.

Woman's Club Christmas Party

The Carmel Woman's Club will close the book on the club year 1953 with its gala annual Christmas party Monday afternoon. The clubhouse will be decked out in holiday greens and ornaments for the occasion, and even the refreshments will follow the traditional Yuletide formulas.

All members and their guests will participate in the fun and frolic, which begins at 2:00 o'clock. Each member will bring a wrapped Christmas gift, and an associate of S. Claus will see to their distribution. Mrs. Ann Vaughan will provide the piano accompaniment for the singing of carols.

Causerie Elects 1954 Officers

The third annual meeting of La Causerie Francaise, the Peninsula's flourishing French language society, was held Saturday evening at the Carmel Art Gallery.

Chief item of business was the election of officers for 1954, which was effected with the following results: Edgar Bissantz, president; Milton Haber, vice-president; Laure des Cherres, secretary; Mrs. Paul Thompson, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Germaine Culp, treasurer.

A resolution was adopted expressing appreciation for the work of Mrs. August Armanasco in conducting the affairs of the society during the summer months while the president, Mr. Bissantz, was abroad.

Business dispensed with, sound films of France were shown and refreshments consumed. La Causerie, which invites new memberships, is preparing a series of interesting programs for next year, regarding which Bissantz grandly announces "Selon nos plans, nous aurons des programmes magnifiques l'annee prochaine." His own words.

Wayfarer Circle Tea

Fourscore members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer met for a Christmas program and tea in the charming home of Mrs. Walter Schuster on Viscaino Street on Tuesday afternoon. The tea was really a gathering of the four Circles of the Auxiliary which usually meet separately, as few homes can accommodate the combined groups. Hostesses assisting Mrs. Schuster were the Circle leaders, Mrs. Mary Sanders, Mrs. E. Leigh Mudge, Mrs. Edward C. Hicks, and Mrs. R. C. Cairns.

The meeting opened informally with a musical program arranged by Mrs. Milton H. Schutes, six numbers sung by the chapel choir: Love Come Down at Christmas; There's a Song in the Air; O Come, O Come, Emmanuel; The Christ Child Lay on Mary's Lap; I Wonder as I Wander; Hark Now, O Shepherds. Mr. John W. Farr directed the choir. Mrs. Henry Venn read a very touching Serbian folk tale, This is the Christmas, after which Mrs. R. Clay O'Rear announced the special Christmas project selected to receive the afternoon's offering: the Ming Yong Home for Girls in Los Gatos, an institution maintained by the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. K. Fillmore Gray, minister of the Church of the Wayfarer, with Mrs. Gray at the piano, presented two solos on the musical saw, with its flutelike tones: Away in the Manger, and Silent Night. Mr. Farr then led the company in appropriate carols. The final musical numbers were soprano solos by Mrs. Frederick M. Loofis with Mrs. Donald Whitmer at the piano and Mrs. Shutes playing the obligatos: Longing at Rest, and Cradle Song of the Virgin by Brahms, with viola obligato, and Lord Most Holy, by Franck, with violin obligato.

Following the very enjoyable program, tea, coffee and a great variety of cakes were served, and the Circle members put their Christmas offerings—chiefly folding money — into a large silver bowl near the door, and as they departed each chose a dainty favor provided by Mrs. Schuster, from a counter full of small potted plants gaily decorated with tiny Christmas bells, shiny ornaments, and bright ribbon.

D.A.R. Christmas Meeting

Commodore Sloat Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold its Christmas meeting at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Orval H. Polk in Monterey.

Helen Shute and Marie Sale will be heard in some Christmas musical selections, and Mrs. Marcia De Voe will show "Reflections of Europe", a pictorial account of her summer's travels in 12 European countries.

Wayfarer Mothers' Club

On Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock the Wayfarer Mothers' Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Richard W. Bell on San Pedro Lane. The program will feature Dr. Bela C. Maday and a group from the Army Language School telling about Christmas in their native lands. Hostesses will be Mrs. Walter Burde, Mrs. Walter Avis, and Mrs. K. Fillmore Gray. Information about transportation may be secured from the president, Mrs. F. W. Slattery at 2-6716.

Carmel Point Party

Some 30 guests gathered at the Carmel Point home of Mrs. Molly Espenshade last Saturday night for an evening of dancing, singing, and general conviviality. The party, reports the hostess, presented one virtually unprecedented feature for a Carmel social gathering: the "stags" outnumbered the ladies, thanks to several guests from the Language School and Fort Ord who showed up sans dates. Among the Carmel couples who participated were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Taylor (he's mending nicely after cracking a few ribs in an automobile accident several weeks ago), Mr. and Mrs. Webster Street (out socially for the first time since the birth of their new baby), Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Grimshaw and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Conlan.

GOLF OFFICERS ELECTED

George Galios, topflight Peninsula golfer, is the new president of the Monterey Bay Golf Club, Inc. Completing the 1954 slate of officers, elected by the club in a mail ballot, are Herman Woodward, vice-president; Clem Trapkus, secretary; and Loren Bell, treasurer. The new board of directors consists of Vince Colletto, Frank Morton, Joseph O'Neill, George Turner, Frank Thacker, Al Perez, Al Watson and Fred Gadsby.

The new officers will be installed during the club's annual dinner dance, to be held Saturday night at 8:00 o'clock at Rancho Del Monte, Carmel Valley. Outgoing president Clem Trapkus will formally turn over the gavel to Galios, and present the club tournament awards for the year.

Have you seen the MASON'S trees?

If you haven't seen them, well—you should!

Art McKee of NB Florists got them for us. Each tree is five feet high and so perfectly proportioned that you'd think Art filled in some of the branches artificially. Take our word for it: He didn't. They grew that way.

And, as for the decorations, well—nothing fancy: just the way you saw Christmas trees when you were a kid.

I think they're popular with some of the present day kids, too: One little fellow was so entranced yesterday that his mother could hardly get him away from the window!

In all, we used 244 ornaments—112 silver ornaments on the tree in the north window; 132 red and green ornaments in the south window. To make the red bows adorning each ornament, we used 3,904 inches of ribbon!

Last year, we had many inquiries as to how the bows were put on. We repeat last year's offer: Just ask us and we'll tell you how we did it.

Altogether, twelve hours were required to decorate the two trees.

If they impress you as much as they've impressed most of those who've seen them, we feel well repaid for the effort.

The MASON'S, as you know, are on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth. Telephone Carmel 7-3836. Ask for S&H Green Stamps with your purchases and make an extra saving. Store hours: 9:30 till 6. Adv.

LOTS OF ACTION FOR CARMEL HIGH TONIGHT

Four Carmel High basketball teams will see action tonight as the lightweight reserves and junior-varsity host the Palma High School quintets from Salinas and the lightweight and varsity squads trek to King City for a pair of league tilts with the highly-regarded Mustangs. The wholesale change in Carmel's playing schedule was occasioned by the withdrawal of San Lorenzo from the B league and a completely new schedule drawn up for the six remaining schools in the smaller division.

Hoop action at Carmel's gym tonight finds a Padre lightweight squad of Dick Odgen, Charley Dawson, Clyde Klaumann, Lyle Shelton, Craven Ross, and Mark Hildebrand taking on a good Palma limited team which hasn't lost a game during the current season. The Palma lads whipped the Monterey Serra lightweights and showed a lot of class doing the job. The Carmel junior-varsity tackles the Palma varsity, losers to the Monterey Serra heavyweights in an early season tussle, with David Gray, Kyrk Reid, Dave Warren, Don Chapman, Gene Mullnix, Jim Kurtz, Pat Erwin, and Bruce Langshaw.

Opening league action at King City finds the Carmel lightweights about on even terms with the King City Ponies, with both teams sprinkled with veterans from last year's squads and both playing about even for the season. The Carmel limiteds upset the Santa Cruz lightweights, 34 to 31, last Saturday night, while the King City lights whipped Atascadero, 38 to 30. King City boasts a high-scoring guard, Padilla, who has a bad night unless he scores twenty or more points. This lad was all-league last season, hitting for 25 points against Carmel in the league-opener last year. The little Padres will open with Eric Scarlett and Gary Nielsen at the forwards, Mervyn Sutton at center, with Mike Mosolf and Jimmy Konrad manning the guard spots.

Carmel's varsity, dropped by Santa Cruz, 46 to 39, in the opening game of the season, learned a lot of basketball in scrimmages with the Presidio Collegians and could upset the favored Mustangs. The Padres will attempt to do business at the opening tipoff with Dick Jennings, George Hunter, George Wightman, Paul Fratessa and Don Leidig.

CARMEL LIGHTWEIGHTS EDGE SANTA CRUZ, 34 to 31

For the first time in basketball competition between the two schools, the Carmel High lightweight basketball team managed to finish in front of the Santa Cruz limiteds as the two midget teams battled down to the wire in last Saturday night's thriller. The little Padres got off winging to a 5-0 lead early in the first quarter and were never headed during the spirited contest. Santa Cruz fought back strong in the final period, deadlocking the tussle at 31-31 in the last two minutes, but the little Padres bounced back with three free tosses to ice the coveted victory.

A fine team effort by starters Gary Nielsen, Eric Scarlett, John Thompson, Mike Mosolf, and Jimmy Konrad, plus the steady play of reserves Dick Ogden, Randy Houghtelling, Charley Dawson, Bill McCormack, Merv Sutton and Roger Newell proved to be a winning combination for the little Padres. Scoring honors were evenly divided with Mike Mosolf hitting for 9, Jim Konrad tallying 8, with Gary Nielsen and Eric Scarlett each getting 7.

DADS SET GRID BANQUET FOR GRIDDERS WED. NIGHT

An enthusiastic gang of Carmel football Dads will set the table for their football playing Sons next Wednesday night as Carmel High football players gather at the high school cafeteria for an evening of football frolic. Over 60 players will be feted by their Dads and a host of invited guests. Top speaker of the evening will be Dutch Fehring, line coach at Stanford University and one of the top scouts in college football. Dutch, brother of Ted Fehring, top football official and one of Carmel's favorite sportsmen, brings with him a wealth of football experience garnered as a player at Purdue University and as a coach at Oklahoma, UCLA, and Stanford. Besides tutoring the Stanford forward wall, setting baffling defenses, and scouting grid opponents, the versatile Dutch is also on the baseball coaching staff. (Incidentall, brother Ted will be seen in action as head linesman at the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco on January 2nd.)

CARMEL HIGH REVISED BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

With San Lorenzo (Boulder Creek) dropping out of the league, it has been necessary to revise the complete schedule for the coming season. In the new six-team setup, each school will play home-and-home with all the schools in the league. The Padres open league play at King City tonight and close the season with the Annual Carmel Tournament slated for March 4, 5, and 6.

SANTA CRUZ TOPS CARMEL VARSITY, 46 TO 39

The skyscraper Santa Cruz varsity basketball team controlled both backboards against the hard-trying Carmel heavies last Saturday night and finished on the long end of a 46-39 count after four quarters of fast-moving basketball. With a front line averaging over 6-4, the Cardinals had ball control throughout the game and made good on 18 baskets out of 64 attempts while the smaller Padres counted 14 baskets on 50 attempts. Scoring with damaging tip-ins during the first half, the visitors enjoyed a 23-13 lead at the intermission and appeared set to run roughshod over the outclassed hosts. However, the red and grey lads came back and actually outscored the visitors during the second half and closed the gap to 4 points at one stage of the final period.

George Hunter, shifty backline playmaker of the Padres, led the local scorers, hitting for 15 points six field goals and three charity tosses. Don Leidig tanked four field goals and two free throws for a 10-point evening, while lanky George Wightman racked up eight points for the Carmel cause.

Carmel Lions To Sponsor Annual Xmas Kids Theatre Party

Carmel Lions are doing their Christmas shopping early. They're buying candy by the bucket load, and apples and oranges for their annual Christmas theatre party for the Carmel kids.

You'd think Santa would be all worn out after his peak performance Christmas eve and Christmas morning, but for the Lions and the Carmel kids he works still another shift at the Carmel Theatre at 10:00 o'clock Christmas morning. He distributes candy before the movie, and apples and oranges as the guests depart. Why not the fruit first and the candy afterwards ask the nutritionists? Remember when you were a kid what good throwing material apple cores were?

Murl Ogden is chairman of this year's theatre party, and he'll be assisted by eight Lions of his selection. Two hundred youngsters were the Lions guests at their last theatre party. Divide that by one and a half and you'll know how many mothers were also recipients of a Christmas present from the Lions, two hours of quiet to perform the ritual of getting the Christmas turkey ready for the oven.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

A Case of "Moostaken" Identity

Slim Smith never had a chance to use his moose call until a trip north this year. Visited him yesterday to see what he'd bagged.

"First day out," he told me, "I picked up a trail. I sounded the call and waited. Then I heard a moose call. Sure enough, something came crashing through the brush. But it was another guy with his moose call. Boy, did I get my finger off the trigger in a hurry!

"My last day there I picked up another trail. This time I got me a real moose. But you can bet I took a good look before I did any shooting!"

From where I sit, we could all learn a little from Slim's experience. Most of us are guilty sometime or other of being too quick on the trigger. Like the fellow who would deny me the right to an occasional glass of beer with my dinner. I say that kind of "aim" is way off!

Grade School Notes . . .

Mr. Daly's 7th Grade—Sunset

LAWRENCE LIGHT VISITS SUNSET SCHOOL

He tumbled out of his Model-T, and extended a hand in greeting to Mr. Rogers, principal of Sunset School.

"We have arranged for you to observe a class," said Mr. Rogers. "No doubt you will find that schools have changed somewhat since your day. Let us visit in this classroom and see what is going on."

Sally Bishop was just finishing her thoughts about winning friends. "I'm sure you want to be tops in the crowd. But if you stop to think, you may wonder why Janice and Sue are more popular. You are just as pretty, you wear stunning clothes, but looks will not put you at the head of the crowd as you will later learn.

"You may check out the book Winning Friends. You read how helping people, thanking people, and saying please more often is wonderful for winning friends. I'll do this for a while, you think, until I'm popular, and then I'll stop. A week later you are more unpopular than ever, because there was no feeling behind your manners, and people were conscious of it. Then you decide to read the whole book.

"One evening after completing the book, you sit down and think the matter over. You decide that a person has to have real feeling and genuine attitudes toward others. You become a changed person, and you are one of the crowd now. Every once in a while you continue to check that book out."

"Lynne Campbell is going to read one of her stories written for the Language class," commented Mr. Rogers.

"Sarah was very happy. She had been invited to the Spring Dance. She went to her bedroom to lay out some things that she would wear to the dance the next night including her new shoes. Oh! I forgot to tell you, she had five sisters. One of them was always wearing her shoes, but Sarah was not going to let this sister wear her brand new shoes. She was going to hide them.

"When her sister learned that she had a new pair of shoes, she went to Sarah's room to look for them.

"The next morning Mother got up, went to the kitchen and started breakfast. She turned on the oven to make toast. A few minutes later there was an awful smell. Mother opened the oven—that is where the smell seemed to come from. To her surprise, there were Sarah's baked shoes.

"Sarah was so sad she almost cried, but there is no use crying over baked shoes."

While Mr. Rogers watched Mr. Light beam with approval, he said, "I'm going to ask Moni Gatewood and Sharon Zarp to tell you about our fine cafeteria managed by Mrs. Sieve. I have to get back to the office."

"The cafeteria gets most of its recipes from the State and the Federal Government. Some of the favorite dishes are hamburger, hot dogs, turkey, and roast beef well balanced with vegetables, salad, dessert, and milk. The menu for the last day of school before the Christmas holidays may be turkey with dressing, potatoes, cranberries, ice cream and cake. There is a snack bar where pie and candy may be purchased. The cafeteria feeds an average 240 students a day.

"The cafeteria is very restful with colorful curtains and painted tables. The entire picture would not be complete without the charming murals furnished by the art classes."

Mr. Light reflected, "If they had fed me this well when I was in school, I never would have graduated. What have you planned for the future?"

"The School is putting on a Christmas Pageant at 8:00 P.M. on December 17," chimed in Vivian Davis and David Farr. "In the center of the stage a type of open altar will be located where motionless scenes will tell the story of the birth of Jesus. The choir will sing a variety of Christmas music."

"Today's schools certainly are better than yesterday's,' mused Mr. Light.

Ann Warren and Fritz Scheffer told Mr. Light of the comparison offered by Andrew Elliott, a new student from Scotland. "In Glasgow the schools are less modern. The classrooms have table-like desks seating two students each. They study three subjects: Arithmetic in the morning, and English and drawing in the afternoon.

"There is more discipline in Scottish schools, however. For instance, when you are standing in line before you enter the room in the morning and if you talk, you get the belt.'

"I think you should be very pleased with your pleasant school," observed Mr. Light. "I must be off now."

Capt. Paul M. Thompson introduces high school algebra to students at the Eighth Army Education Center in Seoul, where he is an instructor. Thompson, whose wife, Louise, and father, the Reverend Jersing Thompson, live in Carmel, is a 1940 graduate of St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minnesota. The center offers instruction in subjects that Eighth Army soldiers can later apply to their college educations. Capt. P. G. & E. Offices To Be Closed Sat.

For a trial period of several months commencing with the new year, the local office of Pacific Gas and Electric Company will be closed Saturdays, it was announced today by L. G. Weer, manager here for the company. This will not affect pay station located at Carmel Valley Hardware, Los Laureles Village.

"The trend toward a five-day week has reached the point where we have decided that a trial is justified," Mr. Weer said in making the announcement. "We find that more and more customers are conducting all of their business with us either by mail or by telephone, including requests for service.

"The closing of the business office on Saturdays will have no effect on emergency services. Any customer having service problems during non-business hours may get in touch with a company representative by telephoning 5-4137."

The local office will have a "drop slot" depository available for customers wishing to deposit payments on Saturdays, or at any other time when the office is closed. The payment, together with the bill stub, may be placed in an envelope and left in the depository.

Patricia Whitney to Wed

Plans for a pre-Christmas wedding were announced this week by Patricia Busby Whitney of Carmel and Lt. Stansfield Turner, USN. The ceremony will take place December 23 at 4:00 o'clock at White Caps, Mrs. Whitney's ocean-front home here.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Percy Shelley Busby of Van Nuys. Her wedding attendants will be Mrs. Alfred Vang and her eight-year-old daughter, Laurel Whitney. The best man, Richard Harza, a former classmate and long-time friend of the groom, will be coming from Chicago for the occasion. Five-year-old Geoffrey Whitney will perform the service of ring bearer for his mother.

Lt. Turner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver S. Turner of Highland Park, Illinois. He is at present stationed at Newport, Rhode Island, having just returned from a tour of duty in Korea.

The wedding ceremony will take place in front of the picture-window seascape of Point Lobos and Petticoat Bay in the living room of White Caps. The holiday motif will be carried out in the decorations of Christmas greenery and while bells.

The bride will wear a ballerina-length gown of grey lace and carry a nosegay of talisman roses. Her matron of honor has chosen a costume of navy silk and will carry yellow roses. The two children will be dressed in pale blue.

Cotton Tot

It's a boy for Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Cotton of Carmel. Their first son was born last Wednesday at the Monterey Hospital; a hefty eight-pound, five ouncer, he's been named Russell Hanley. The other member of the family is his two year old sister, Lauren.

Visiting the Cottons and helping with the new baby are his maternal grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. George J. Denzler. The Denzlers came up from their home in Riverside to spend the Thanksgiving holiday with their daughter and son-in-law, then decided to stay around for the arrival of the new grandchild. The paternal grandparents, Cmdr. and Mrs. Harold H. Cotton of La Mesa, hope to be able to visit some time after the first of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Cotton have made their home here since August, having formerly lived in Berkeley. Mr. Cotton is a member of the civilian faculty of the engineering department at the Naval Post-graduate School.

Weekend in the City

Dr. Friedy Heisler, Arline Turi and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Spellar were among the many Carmelites who spent last weekend in the holiday welter of the big city. Primary purpose of the trip was not shopping, but entertainment: Friday night, they took in the stage production of New Faces, and Saturday night saw the Sadler's Wells performance of Sylvia. The foursome finished things off with a ballet matinee Sunday afternoon.

Daisy's Birthday

Monday was Daisy Bostick's birthday and she took a dim view of it. "Today is my birthday . . . me and Pearl Harbor. That I should be born on this 'day of infamy' . . ." There are a lot of Carmel people who are so grateful that Daisy was born that they're not fussy about the day.

Matrimony, Science and Christmas

Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Blinks of Jacks' Peak are taking to the air lanes next Thursday, bound for the bean-and-bluenose capitol of the east, Boston, where in less than three weeks they will (1) celebrate Christmas; (2) become embroiled in the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and (3) be present at the wedding of their son, John, in nearby Rowley, Massachusetts.

The most important event of the trip, John's marriage to Doris Marie Chambers, will take place on the afternoon of December 28 in the Rowley home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gurth Chambers. As it happens, December 28 is also the date on which both Dr. Blinks, director of Hopkins Marine Station, and the bride-elect, who worked under him there after graduating from Stanford, are expected to present a paper at the AAAS meeting. How this conflict between science and matrimony will ultimately be solved is still uncertain; the bride, however, has indicated that on her wedding day, at least, science can go hang.

Doris will be given in marriage by her father. Bridal attendant will Miss Eleanor Lewis, Doris' roommate in Boston while she has worked as a research assistant at Harvard Medical School, where John is a student. Dr. Blinks, according to plan, will be his son's best man. Ushering will be Elton Clark, son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Clark of Carmel, who has known John since pre-Carmel High days; they've kept in contact while John was at Stanford and Harvard and Elton at Dartmouth.

The Blinks—mere, pere et fils—will spend Christmas in Boston, where they have the loan of the Chambers-Lewis apartment while the bride-to-be and her maid of honor are in Rowley completing preparations for the wedding. Following the nuptials, John and Doris will take a week's honeymoon; Dr. and Mrs. Blinks expect to be back on the Peninsula by January 3 in time for registration day at Stanford.

During their absence, the Blinks' beloved boxers and their Jacks Peak home will be cared for by Ruth and Wallace Thompson, who have just returned from Libya, where he served with the state department. Mrs. Thompson's father, Dr. H. L. Niebel of Palo Alto, has a weekend home in Rancho Aguajito, and the Thompsons have visited here frequently in the past.

Stephen Thatcher Visiting

Andy and Stephen Thatcher, along with their bairns Michael and Andrea (six months and three years old, respectively) arrive here tomorrow for a two week's visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Del Monte and Mrs. Edith Thatcher. The Thatchers, who haven't been up for a visit since Michael's arrival, make their home in Redondo Beach.

Farewell and Hail

The scheduled move of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Pierre Kunstle from Carmel to Switzerland was the occasion for a potluck supper and farewell party in their honor Saturday night at the Carmel Woods home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benedict.

The Kunstles, who came here from the east nearly a year ago, planned to depart today for Geneva, where they will ultimately make their permanent home. Happily enough, they experienced a change of heart Saturday night: after a prolonged conference in the Benedict kitchen, they beamingly announced to their assembled friends "We're staying!" Switzerland? Maybe next year. The party, after a roar of approval, switched from "bon voyage" to "welcome home" tempo.

Present at the sendoff-cum-reception, in addition to the Benedicts and the honor guests, were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baird, Mrs. Barbara Krieger, Mrs. Bonnie King, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Gale, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feek and Mr. and Mrs. Will Shaw.

The Kunstles are now busy retrieving their 900-odd pounds of Switzerland-bound luggage, recovering their furniture and household effects (most of which was sold) and re-establishing themselves in their re-rented house.

All Askew and a Month Old

Mary Lynn Askew had her first birthday last Saturday: first month, that is, since she was born November 5 at the Fort Ord Hospital. She's the newest member of the extensive clan Askew, whose members are distributed all over the Peninsula; her parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Askew, Jr., and she's their first bairn.

Grandparents of the new baby are the William Askews, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bartowick, all of Carmel. Both Bill and Mary, the baby's parents, were raised in Carmel, and attended school here.

Peter's Restful Holiday

City Clerk Peter Mawdsley and Mrs. Mawdsley arrived back from a Hawaiian holiday this week in time for the Wednesday City Council meeting, tired out from their carefully planned restful vacation. It was to be a leisurely progress to the Islands and back on a freighter with plenty of deck-chair sun bathing and a small passenger list to guarantee quiet. Stormy passage over and contrary winds on the return trip made deck chair lounging impossible. "It was all we could do to keep our feet in the day time, and avoid being tossed out of our berths at night," Peter reports wearily.

The received a royal welcome in the Islands, however, and were so warmly entertained that they could ignore the overcast skies.

For the Halls — who run the Village Corner and conduct the folk-dance classes at Carmel High —it's the third child, the siblings being Terry, 12, and Karyl, eight. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Arvin of Salinas and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hall of Montana.

Oh To Be An S.O.G.

Mrs. James B. McGrury, who has waited a long time for the event, is now proudly boasting her recent induction into the ranks of the S.O.G.—which, to the initiated, she says, means the Silly Old Grandmothers club.

Mr. and Mrs. McGrury, longtime Carmelites, became grandparents on Monday with the birth of a bonny boy to their daughter Ellen Pearl and her husband Robert Dunn. A Carmel girl, Ellen was raised and schooled here, and she and Robert were married at Carmel Mission. The firstborn will be named Robert, after his dad middle name hasn't been decided as yet.

Mrs. McGrury left yesterday for the Dunn's home in Susanville to be on hand when Ellen and the baby arrive from the hospital. Grandpa McGrury, who'll hold down the home fort while she's gone, will have to wait until after Christmas to get a look at his first grandson.

Something New at Sea View

Perennial guests at F. H. Pogge's Sea View Inn on Camino Real are finding something new has been added: namely, a Mrs. Pogge. The couple were married recently in Nevada, and are now busy with modifications and improvements on the Inn, which Pogge has owned for the past 10 years.

The new Mrs. Pogge is the former Gladys De Raay, daughter of Mrs. Annie De Raay of Santa Monica. She studied journalism at Columbia University and prior to her marriage worked as an advertising publicist for a motion picture company in New York. She and Mr. Pogge met while she was vacationing here in Carmel.

Starting January 1, the Inn plans to serve home-cooked breakfasts and dinners to guests. The cook? Mrs. Pogge, of course.

Shower for Roberta

The former Roberta Roberts of Carmel, who became Mrs. Henry Van Brocklin last month in Visalia, was showered with gifts by her friends at a reception last Friday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lydia Roberts. Hostess for the occasion was Mrs. Victoria Urlin of Carmel Valley.

The new Mrs. Van Brocklin is now living in Carlimart, California, where she has a teaching position. Henry, a graduate of the Army Language School, is presently stationed with the Army in Virginia.

Guests at the shower were Helen Hebrard, Mary Elliott, Marie Fehring, Haddie Vandervort, Wanda Stoutamore, Bonnie Bowie, Ida Mignano, Fern Vandervort, Vera Marcolli, Joan Vandervort, Laura Vernon, Vernie Marcolli and Nancy Bonzo. Sending gifts but unable to attend were Golda Morton, Evelyn Vandervort, Edith Jones and Helen Barbie.

200 Attend O.E.S. Installation

Meeting for the first time in the redesigned and redecorated Carmel Masonic Hall, the local chapter of the Order of Eastern Star held its impressive installation ceremonies Wednesday night. Over 200 members and guests crowded the hall, which was decorated in the Christmas theme with holly and white carnations.

A corps of past Matrons and Patrons conducted the installation ceremonies, at which Mrs. Mary Neroda was made the new Worthy Matron and William Bjornvold the Worthy Patron.

Other newly-installed officers are Marion Scheffer, assistant matron; Egon Derr, assistant patron; Pauline Ketcham, secretary; Marguerite Askew, treasurer; Bernice Little, conductress; Wanda Giles, assistant conductress; Bee Hetrick, chaplain; Helen Bjornvold, marshal; Juanita Franklin, organist; Thelma Durr, Adah; Ethel Dixon, Ruth; Dorothy Ashley, Esther; Dorothea Roberts, Martha; Bessie Westover, PM, elector; Edith Avis, warder; and Norman Winslow, sentinel.

Performing the installation were Reene Coleman, PM, Gordon Browne, PP, Hazael Marsh Piper, PGM, along with Veva Watson, Viola Lee Schulte, Margaret Giles, Shirley Watson, Margaret Wishart and Alva Gunnel, all past matrons, and Blanche Shimpfky, Norman Winslow Ida Mae Best and David Askew.

Hostess for the evening was Helena Reed Johnson, PM, and host John Westover, PP. Receptionists were Ruth May Friend and Lydia Smith, with Paul Avis and Harold Lewis as ushers.

Masons Meet in New Temple

Over 100 members of the Carmel Masonic Lodge gathered for the first time in their completely refurbished and enlarged temple on Lincoln near Eighth for a gala dinner meeting Friday night.

Following the big ham dinner, the members adjourned to their new upstairs lodge room for a stated meeting, during which officers were elected for 1954 and several distinguished visitors introduced.

Among those present were Lloyd Wilson, past Grand Master and present Grand Secretary of the Masons in California, who visited on the Peninsula last weekend; Arch Balchin, Inspector for the 414th Masonic district; Russell W. Giles, past Inspector and father of Bill Giles, reigning Worshipful Master of the Carmel lodge; and Charles A. Watson, the first Master of the Carmel lodge. Also introduced as honor guests were two 50-year members, Brothers Ralph Zuck and Henry Jurs.

Eugene R. Scheffer was elected to the post of new Master of the lodge for 1954. He and the other newly elected officers will officially take over at an installation meeting to be held January 16.

CRAFTS EXHIBIT AT LIBRARY

A display of textile block prints by Nadean Gonzales of Carmel is being featured for the month of December in the Carmel Crafts Guild exhibition case at the library.

Mrs. Gonzales studied art in college, then did graduate work in color and design under Belle Boas at Columbia and Dr. Eugene Steinhof at the University of Oregon, which she attended on a Carnegie Scholarship. She is a former teacher and administrator in high school, college and adult school, and her students have won many awards in national competitions.

Examples of weaving and block printing by Mrs. Gonzales herself have won top awards for the past four years at the Monterey County Fair in the home economics and crafts divisions.

Crafts Guild Holiday Party

Some fifty members of the Carmel Crafts Guild will gather tonight at the home of Mrs. G. F. White in Monterey for an informal Christmas party and buffet supper. Guests of honor at the occasion will be the models who helped make the Crafts Guild fashion show such a success during Art Week here recently.

There'll be singing of Christmas carols and exchanging of gifts, and each member will bring a special gift to be sent to patients in the isolation ward at the Salinas hospital.

High point of the evening promises to be the supper itself, which is being prepared, unassisted, by Mrs. White, who is acknowledged a master craftsman in the kitchen. The guests will be served individual chicken pasties, moulded cranberry salad, a variety of dips and relishes and, with the Christmas punch and coffee, the hostess' very special tiny drop donuts.

Trees Alight And Shops Decorated For Yule Cheer

Carmel's two-tree Christmas Tree Lane glowed with lights last evening for the first night of the holiday season. Strollers on Ocean Avenue and drivers coming over the hill stopped to admire the light-bedecked pine at the east end of town and the smaller pine at the west end of the business district, lighted for the first time this year. The trees will stay lit until the first day of next year.

Starting Monday night, many Carmel shops will remain open evenings until 9:00 o'clock for the convenience of shoppers. Many of the stores have already unveiled their Christmas decorations, for which the Carmel Business Association is again sponsoring a big contest with cash prizes for most artistic inside and outside displays.

Sade's is calling attention to the richly-colored tempera-on-gesso Nativity scene by Erica Franke which hangs in the dining room, painted especially for Christmas and using the style of the Florentine masters. Sade's also has its beautifully decorated Christmas tree, some of the ornaments of which are over a hundred years old. Spencers has its usual colorful tree, artfully decorated with oversize baubles; The Mason's has two handsomely decorated trees in its windows, and the Hearthstone has stockings hanging in front of its glassed-in fireplace waiting for Santa. Carmel's new automobile showroom, the Foreign Car Center, has two sleek little Volkswagens all tied up with ribbon and ready to go under someone's Christmas tree. Other merchants are putting out their decorations over the weekend, and by next week every window will have its own special contribution to Christmas cheer.

More Films at Town House

Charles Dawson, principal of Carmel's adult school, will show another in a monthly series of documentary and travel films Wednesday afternoon at Town House. Next week's bill will be a double feature, The Big Race, and Southern Highlanders.

The exhibit of paintings by Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver will remain at Town House through December.

A.A.U.W. Christmas Party

Santa Claus, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, will be on hand Wednesday evening for the big Christmas party of the Monterey Peninsula A.A.U.W., to take place at 8:00 o'clock in the Monterey Peninsula College Student Union.

A special Christmas program will be presented by the drama section under Mrs. Mabelle De Kay. Special music for the Christmas season will be provided by Mrs. Wesley Chase and Mrs. W. P. Deddeh. Miss Eleanor Henry is program chairman.

All members are asked to bring one or more books suitable for pre-school children. The books constitute the group's annual Christmas gift to the Monterey Child Care Center. There will also be a Christmas stocking for cash contributions to the same cause.

Wilders Defrosting Here

The Cree Wilders are back in town to spend the winter at their part-time home on Monterey and Third. They've been living on their ranch in Wyoming, but headed for Carmel when the big snows began to arrive.

Son for the Vangs

Santa's Christmas delivery system may be slow, but old man Stork comes along right on schedule, with no post office congestion to worry about. He presented Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Vang of Carmel with a fine baby boy on Tuesday at Peninsula Community Hospital. The new son has been named Christopher Dana.

MPC CAMPUS NEWS

By Allene Knight

Tomorrow night is the big night for the Winter Ball, to be held at Asilomar from 8:30 until 1:00 o'clock. This dance is being sponsored by the Business Club. The music will be provided by the Tenortones, with bids at $2.50 for students with a student body card and $5.00 for those without cards.

The annual Christmas Mixer was held on Thursday night in the Student Union and sponsored by the Associated Women Students (AWS). The admission was one can of canned goods. The group sang carols, danced, and decorated the Christmas tree.

This Monday night the AWS is sending a group of girls to the hospital wards at Fort Ord to entertain the boys. This active club also sent two girls' teams to play volleyball aaginst the Hartnell girls. The MPC girls lost, but they had a lot of fun. The girls who went to play from Carmel are Allene Petty and Doris Konrad.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SHOWS RELIGIOUS ART

Two handsome color lithographs of the Holy Land, painted by David Roberts, R.A., and lithographed by Louis Haghe around 1840, will be on display Sunday morning at the 11:00 o'clock service of the New Presbyterian Church in Carmel at the Carmel Woman's Club.

The lithographs, gifts to the new church from friends of the founding pastor, Dr. Harry Clayton Rogers, at his former church in Kansas City, will eventually be included in the gallery of religious art to be incorporated into the proposed chapel. The lithographs are from two paintings of a series executed by the artist on the commission of Queen Victoria.

The subject of Dr. Rogers' sermon Sunday is How to Have the Happiest Christmas You Have Ever Known. Candles will be lighted during the church service and presented to representatives of various service agencies of the Peninsula as expressions of good will for the coming Christmas season.

Bergen . . .

streets during early morning, bringing the milk in before the day turned hot. We had a sweet and a sour milkman. The sweet delivered cream and milk on Tuesdays and Saturdays, the sour delivered the sour milk on Wednesdays and Fridays. Both cream and milk were boiled or else they would sour, and the boiled cream formed a heavy crust which I am still very fond of. The sour milkman's name was Mons, and being fond of him, I called him onkel Mons. The fondness sprang from a belief that he spoke French, since I could not understand a word of his difficult accent. I was foolish enough to tell mother, and the family had not forgotten! Silly to remember? Of course, but I did. By the way, the sour milk is served at breakfast just as we serve orange juice. In Norway it has almost the consistency of our culture milk. I loved it on a hot day, ice cold and sprinkled with cooky crumbs and cinnamon and sugar.

Friends have asked what I learned, what my reactions were, and how the people differed from us. I don't think it is possible to answer so much in a few words, but let me try.

To me it has been a wonderful experience to learn what the mind contains of memories. Little acts that were all but forgotten and that could not have meant much when they took place, have left their image, and there they were, as alive as ever, recalled by visits to old places, and meeting with old friends; and experience and greater understanding, often gave these memories their full meaning and value.

How people there differ from us has been mentioned in various places, but let me again mention their lack of fear, and their lack of being apprehensive, and this absence of fear does not spring from lack of imagination. They have an enormous aptitude for happiness. If something is lacking, they are willing to make the best of what they have.

The young people, even the quite young, have learned that their task is to carry on from where their elders of necessity left off, and they do. On the other hand, there is a much-repeated saying in Bergen: "Honor thy son and thy daughter that thou mayest long enjoy thy own youth."

People from other parts of Norway say of the people of Bergen that they are not completely sane, but lovable and witty, and goodhearted and warmhearted. I have seen them excited almost to intoxication by music well played, but I have also seen them keep their heads during sobering, darkening troubles. I have seen the condensed bitterness, the glowing hatred, the steel in their eyes, and heard it in their voices when speaking of the occupation, which they never do unless someone else mentions it. I also have seen warm love light their faces and heard it soften their voices while speaking of what must be done for their beloved whether it be family, friends, city or country.

This I should call their outstanding trait: They so often go beyond both strength and purse to help; so perhaps the rest of Norway is right in calling them not quite sane. But, somehow, when they have spent themselves beyond prudence, their strength and the wherewithal strangely become sufficient, as they never had doubted for a minute it would. Here lies their strength, and here is the explanation of the miracle of their rebuilt city, and their rebuilt homes and fortunes after the war.

I have been asked, too, if I regretted taking my uncertain future and enthusiastic hopes to another country when I was very young. There are no answers to such questions. For who can say what life would have been had we chosen a different path?

HI CHATTER

By Susan Nutter

If you drove by the girls' field during a gym period this week, you might have thought that a revival of the good old Robin Hood days had struck Carmel High School. Mrs. Hilda Morlang, the gym teacher, ordered bows, arrows, and other necessary pieces of equipment used in the game of archery. At the beginning of the week it wasn't safe to walk within 100 yards of the area, but after practice, aims are now a "mite" truer.

Tuesday, the state and local government classes visited the county courthouse and attended a trial in Salinas. They also took a look around the Soledad Prison Farm. These trips always prove to be very interesting if you have never been in jail.

Wednesday, members of the Spanish III class had their lunch at a Mexican restaurant. What a gran comida it was too. From past experience I know that if you can't order your meal in Spanish you just don't eat.

Thanks to funds raised through Christmas seals all juniors and seniors had an X-Ray for tuberculosis. The mobile unit came on Thursday and X-Rayed all upperclassmen who had signed cards from their parents. This is a good preventative measure to take, so any trouble at all can be nipped in the bud.

Collection of clothes, toys and food for the Leader's Club family is underway. A Christmas tree with boxes is in the office and a sprinkling of articles has been brought in. All are urged to contribute anything that will give a family of seven girls and a mother a happier holiday.

This Saturday night is the "big" night. The last minute details for the Winter Ball were ironed out, and everything is set for the first formal of the year. Several members from each class are having parties before and after the dance.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel 7-3881.

Letter To The Editor

3010 Franklin St.
San Francisco, Calif.

The Editor of The Pine Cone:

The enclosed is a rhyme I wrote about a dear friend of mine, who recently spent one day in Carmel while we were on a driving trip. Subsequently, we purchased a home for her in Carmel, sight unseen, since, as she said she had decided years ago to live there. I recently sent her a subscription to The Pine Cone and I know she would get a bang out of reading the rhyme in print, as she would immediately recognize the theme.

So if you see fit to print it I would appreciate it — and would like to know in what issue it would appear. My friend lives in Ohio and is planning on coming to Carmel, as we also are after the first of the year.

Very truly yours,
Verdi Wynn

ROSALIND'S DREAM

Ever since I was young, I had a thought in my mind
That when I grew older, a place I would find.
I'd forget all care and there I would hie
And live in contentment until I should die.

I knew such a place (in the back of my head)
Where I wanted to be, just from things I had read.
A cottage, with flowers, and right by the sea
Where friends could come and visit with me.

Not remote—this place—but with interest it hums
With people and beauty and fiddle-de-dums
Nice places to eat when you have a desire,
Good books to read when you sit by the fire.

One waits a long time for a dream to come true
Vain hopes and despair often change its hue.
And then comes a day—a day unforetold,
When at last this place in your mind you behold.

I knew it at once—I was no longer haunted,
No fears and doubts, it was just what I wanted.
At last I had found where I wanted to be,
Yes — California—In Carmel-by-the-Sea! —V.W.

Chapel Singers In Sunday Services

The Chapel Singers will sing two selections during the identical services of the Church of the Wayfarer on Sunday at 9:15 and 10:45 a.m. This choral group, directed by John W. Farr, is composed of Corliss Myers, Dorothea B. Gray, Marjory M. Marsh, Kay Carter, Herbert L. Myers, Howard G. Carter, and Herbert B. Blanks. They will sing a 15th century French carol, Sing Noel, and Amid the Snows, a Rose by Jones. Dr. K. Fillmore Gray's sermon theme will be It Is the Same Road.

Church School classes at 9:15 and 10:45 a.m. in their department worship services will be lighting the third of the Advent candles, and also preparing for their participation in the Christmas Family Night on Monday, December 21st at 7:00 o'clock.

Junior High students meet at 4:00 o'clock with Mrs. Floyd O. Carter, working on special Christmas projects, and the High School Youth Fellowship leave the church at 3:00 o'clock to go to a Christmas Rally at the Community Church in Freedom, with Lt. and Mrs. Raymond L. Farmer as counselors. Young adults will have a buffet supper at the Manse at 6:30 p.m. for which arrangements have been made by Miss Annis Quinn.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"God the Preserver of Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Christian Science churches, Sunday, December 13. The sermon will consist of citations from the Bible and from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

The readings from the Bible will include this verse from Psalms: "The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth" (145:18).

From Science and Health this correlative passaage will be read: "The history of Christianity furnishes sublime proofs of the supporting influence and protecting power bestowed on man by his heavenly Father, omnipotent Mind, who gives man faith and nderstanding whereby to defend himself, not only from temptation, but from bodily suffering" (p. 387).

Dismissal Motion On Rate Increase Of P. T. & T. Denied

The motion to dismiss the application of The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company for an increase in rates will be denied at the next public hearing on the application, it was annouced today.

The announcement came in a letter signed by Peter E. Mitchell, presiding commissioner in hearings on the PT&T application, notifying all protestants and interested parties that cross examination of the company's witnesses will begin at a public hearing in the State Building in San Francisco on December 16.

Motion to dismiss the application was made on the opening day of hearings by the City of San Francisco, represented by City Attorney Dion Holm. The cities of Oakland and Los Angeles joined in the motion. In effect, the Commission's ruling means that public hearings on the application will continue. At the time the motion was made last April 29 it was taken under submission by Commissioner Mitchell for consideration by the entire Commission.

Fifteen days of hearings have been held in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Bernardino and Santa Cruz, hearings in the latter three cities dealing with proposed inauguration of extended service in those areas. The PT&T direct testimony and cross-examination for clarification of the meaning of certain evidence has been completed.

The series of hearings opening December 16 will be for full cross-examination of the applicant's witnesses by the Commission staff, protestants and interested parties.

Mitchell's letter said that presentation of evidence by the Commission staff is to start in February and that between December 21 and February 12 he wants to schedule and receive the direct testimony of all interested parties and protestants.

Anyone who has material evidence to present was asked to notify Mitchell as soon as possible, giving the length of time required for presentation and when such evidence will be ready in order that a schedule of hearing dates and time allotments may be made. The schedule is to be announced at the December 16 hearing. Letters to the presiding commissioner should be addressed to him at the State Building, San Francisco.

sure, Dearie, that you didn't see the pretty kitty wandering around in some store or service station and that you didn't tuck him under your coat?" I heard or thought I heard, a little gasp at the other end of the line. She is sure that that kitten is Heaven-sent to take the place of Joe Louis.

Kippy is a successful writer of children's books. Her stories are charming and her thrilling Piang Series is dear to the hearts of thousands of youthful readers.

Kippy's garden column isn't just a lot of dry details. It is always fresh honest information. You get the feeling that flowers and plants are her friends; that they have a special personality, and she writes of them respectfully and with the same degree of understanding that she accords humans. No wonder they respond to her by growing and blooming to return her friendship.

Kippy plans and plants gardens for many people, and I imagine that her interest in each project doesn't grow less with the passage of time. The plants are her children and I can't believe that she ever stops caring for anything she creates. And it should be known that she never fails to respond to a cry for help, and that she gives of her knowledge gladly. She put in the planting at the cute little building which is called the police station. That was just one of the several projects she has contributed to the community. Sometimes I wonder if those hard-boiled cops ever give her a parking ticket. They probably do, for they mustn't be partial. She's just the gal who would forget the passage of time if she got interested in pruning a rose.

I have reason to believe that Mrs. Kippy is sensitive and that she can be deeply hurt, as she reveals lately in one of her columns. As I remember someone sent her an unkind letter containing a criticism on some minor matter—I think it was a spelling of a botanical name. And Kippy made the point in her column that some of her readers were prone to find fault instead of offering constructive criticism or encouragement. Well, take it from me, Kippy, that where one person disagrees with your spelling of the Latin name for delphiniums or something else, a hundred readers go for your column as soon as they get the Pine Cone on Fridays, and they read eagerly and avidly every single word of it. And I'll wager that many scrap books can be found in Carmel containing every word you have written for the Pine Cone.

Living in a democratic society and believing in free speech without rancor, I rise to remark that I can't understand why you, Kippy, advocate pruning fuchsias at this time of the year or even earlier than this. Maybe you live in a frostless belt but if I pruned my fuchsias and roses now, in a couple of weeks hence the little new leaves would appear and then if we should have a killing frost, Mr. and Mrs. Fuchsia would be blasted for the coming year.

And now Kippy, let me join the ranks of "gimmies", and ask why my new fuchsia Yankee Doodle Dandy has on one branch brilliantly colored red white and blue blossoms, while another branch, equally vigorous, puts forth sickly blooms of an indeterminate pink. And my Gypsy Queen teases me sometimes by sending out a couple of soft pink and white blossoms among those richly colored with red and purple. I have a rose which blooms its natural cream color and then seems to get tired of its monotonous life and puts out some fiery red blooms. I have a queer-acting pelargonium bearing the name Grand Slam. It was given to me last Easter and has been a thing of beauty ever since. The flowers are bright crimson but at present one of them has one petal of a very decided shade of lavender. Are these things crazy like you and me? I suppose you call them "mutations" like a blue-eyed child who has skipped several generations of black eyes.

I'd like to have some information from you about the above and remember please — for free. I haven't heard from you for some time and am wondering if the kitten is still with you and can it be possible that Joe Louis has staged a dramatic return.

I remain, dear Kippy, one of the most devoted members of your Fan Club.

et Fehring, Wendy Draper, Donna Sands, Wendy Burnham, Nancy Lofton, Alexandria Utgoff, Phyllis Clayton, Diane Miller, Meg Seccombe, Joan Engle, Gail Mackenzie, John Morse, Dick Nevis, Pam Morris, Eleanor McDonald and Dean Rowe.

Graham Music Company has lent Sunset a Hammond organ so Mr. Holman can accompany the choir and lend more of the air of cathedral to the program.

Kenneth Wiese, the new shop teacher at Sunset, and his stage crew boys have done an excellent job constructing sets for the play. The stage crew: Buzzy Richardson, chairman; Mike Raggett, Rob Forbes, Rodney Phillips, Richard Tetley, John Gray, and Mike Nesbitt. George Blanks is student director working with all student groups.

William Buchman, general chairman of the production, has tried to turn the auditorium into a Gothic cathedral through use of large paper false stained glass windows and a triptych altar in which the traditional tableaux will take place. Doing a beautiful job of expressing Gothic design are Joe Mason, Knut Rosenfeld, Philip Durbrow, Ronny Leidig, Susan Midloch, Judy Zellhoefer, Gay Morris, Pepper Lane, Doug Baird, Parker Pollock and Lacey Williams.

Arthur Wilkerson has simplified the front of Rheims Cathedral for a block print design for program cover.

The parts of the traditional tableaux are taken by Carolyn Miller, Heather Hamilton, Kit Jones, Robin Way, Ned Luker, Mike Elsen, Bart Ehman, Shing Mok, Jerry Stuefloten, Jay Wynkoop and Joe Costanza.

Mrs. Adrianne Engle and Mrs. Nancy Lofton have done a superior job to modify the basic choir robe to resemble nuns' and monks' robes worn by the choir and verse choir.

All of the eighth grade boys and girls have had a chance to participate in the production this year to give the community and friends a pageant to be enjoyed for the holiday season.

Wednesday at 2:00 o'clock there will be a matinee for all elementary schools in the Carmel system: Sunset, Woods, River and Bay.

No Fights, Lots Of Work At Wed. Council Meeting

ates on a half-Saturday work-day basis.

A public hearing was set for the next council meeting, January 6, on Mrs. Hazel Rider's appeal against the planning commission's denial of a permit for her to build an office and bathroom addition to her property at Fifth and Lincoln. Since the proposed bath tub is the point of issue, the council agreed to include Mrs. Rider's apartment hotel on its next tree inspection tour to see if the bathroom-office plan could be converted to a bathroom-bedroom set-up for overnight paying guests.

Everybody was pleased when City Clerk Peter Mawdsley told the council that the Carmel Cleaners had refused compensation for cleaning the city's American Flag, on the contrary, they had felt honored by the commission.

tures on national parks and wilderness areas. In recent years he has been an active volunteer in the work of the National Parks Association as well as the Wilderness Society and a number of mountaineering and conservation associations.

The National Parks Association, which will be his major responsibility from this point on, is a non-profit organization with nation-wide membership, operating independently of government. Established in 1919, its sole purpose is to see that our great nature reservations are protected from despoiling influences and are administered under the highest standards. Headquarters of the organization is Washington, D.C. Present executive secretary is Fred M. Packard and its field representative is Devereux Butcher, who also serves as editor of the National Parks Magazine, to which Graves has been a frequent contributor.
